Particulars of the Fighting on Sunday— The 2d and 10th Corps Engaged Near Deep Bottom—Birney Takes Four Guns and a Number of Prisoners-The Enemy Fall Back to a Strong Position-Our Troops Meet with a Considerable Loss in Attempting to Carry the Position-We Still Hold Position in Front of the Enemy's Works, Which are Strong and Well Defended.

[Correspondence Associated Press.] HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC August 16 .- Everything remains quiet in front of Petersburg. The enemy, the last two nights, have been feeling our line on the left. but nothing more than skirmishing between the pickets has taken place. The two telegraph operators, Flynn and Hambright, on duty at Burnside's headquarters, who have been on trial during the past week, charged with making known the substance of despatches to others than those to whom they were addressed, were found not guilty by the Court. General Meade, however, deeming them to have been guilty of disobedience of orders and breach of trust, has ordered them to be sent beyond the limits of the army, and forbidden to return. Deserters continue to arrive in small squads; a lieutenant and twelve men reached here yesterday. They tell the usual stories of demoralization and the prospect of speedy destruction of the rebel army. Thousands they say, are leaving on account of not receiving any pay, while their families are starving, and they are determined to stay in service no longer under any circumstances. Gen. Park is now in command of the Ninth

Additional particulars have been received of the action of Sunday. Part of the 2d and part of the 10th corps engaged the enemy in the afternoon, near Deep Bottom. The 10th, under General Birney, took part of a line of works, with four eight-inch brass guns and a number of prisoners. His loss was small. The enemy fell back to a strong position. The 2d division of the 2d corps was drawn up in line of battle and advanced about a mile beyond where Hancock captured the four guns two weeks ago. Here the 1st brigade, Colonel Macy commanding, took the lead and charged across a corn-field, over a hill, and down into a ravine, where they came to a swamp, with a stream on the other side, the ground covered with impenetrable brush on the margins. During all this time they were exposed to a heavy fire from the rebel artillery, which did a good deal of damage. It was found impossible to cross the ravine, and the men were halted and lay concealed as well as possible until dark, when they were withdrawn. Colonel Macy had his horse shot under him, and mounting General Barlow's horse, the animal became unmanageable, and finally falling on the Colonel, badly bruised him. Colonel Macy was wounded in the Wilderness, and had returned to the field only a day or two before. The division lost at least three hundred men in the engagement.

The 1st and 3d divisions, which were in support, lost about two hundred and fifty from

The wounded were all brought off, and are his left arm, while gallantly leading his regi-Maj. W. H. Hamilton, 26th Wisconsin, was severely wounded in the face, and Capt. Lindley, of the same regiment killed. Sergeant Ball, 36th Wisconsin, killed, and about twelve wounded in that regiment. Sergeant Fuchs, 36th Wisconsin, color bearer, was badly wounded. This is the third time he has been wounded in the present campaign. Lieut. Telley, 125th N. Y., and Lieut. Wheelhouse, 2d N. Y. artillery, wounded. Our troops still hold their position in front of the enemy's works, which are very strong and well defended, owing to the nature of the country in the vicinity.

General Burnside at Providence. PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 16 .- Major General Burnside is in town on leave of absence.

He has not been relieved of his command.

The Court of Inquiry, without coming to any decision, adjourned on account of the neces. sary absence of some of its members.

The Situation. Whether we look at Atlanta, Mobile, or Petersburg, the whole aspect of the situation is just now exceedingly favorable. The official announcement of the results of Farragut's victory equals every expectation formed by the first advices of the victory, and proclaims the old Admiral as able and as brave as he has always been modest. At Petersburg Grant seems to have found a solution for the vexatious problem that the recent failure of his assault on the rebel works has thrust upon him. He has discovered that the city can be flanked, and close on the discovery came the first steps of its execution. Hancock has succeeded in ascending the James river, and driving the rebel troops out of Dutch Gap. The river at this point makes a U-shaped bend. The gap joins the upper portion of the figure, and makes a small island called Farrar's Island. In a straight line this position is about eight miles from City Point; but by the river, which is here, as all who have sailed upon it know, peculiarly crooked, and in some places almost doubled upon itself, it is, perhaps, eighteen miles. From Fort Darling it is distant about eight miles; from Richmond fourteen miles, by

The expedition seems to us to be intended to cut off communication between Petersburg and Richmond. The railroad connecting the cities is scarcely five miles from the Gap, and if, as is claimed, our force is respectable in numbers, and has taken the rebels by surprise, we see no difficulty in isolating Lee from the city which he has for four years so pertinaciously defended. The experience of the war has, however, taught us not to hope or predicate too much. The rebels in the outset may have been surprised, but it is likely that preparations were immediately made for our reception, and to keep the railroad intact. Troops could easily be forwarded from Richmond or Petersburg to hold the road. Lee's celerity of movement in the last assault strengthens this supposition. Hancock cannot, therefore, proceed without fighting, but his presence will divert large bodies of troops from Petersburg, and jeopardize it, for Grant still remains in front, and his known ability may enable him to grasp a vietory despite the efforts of the enemy .- Philadel-

S. P. CHASE. FROM SHERMAN'S ARMY.-Pretty heavy fighting occurred on last Saturday and Sunday, and Monday, at the front, but no general battle took place. The advantages were decidedly in our favor. The losses were not heavy on either side. Everything is progressing favorably.—Nashville Union, August 13th.

TEE PRIOR OF GAS.—The trustees of the Philadelphia Gas Works have notified the public that the price of gas from the 1st day of September will be advanced from $2.50 to $3 per thousand cubic feet.

A Land Attack on Mobile.

We think it probable, from information received from a private correspondent in New Orleans, that a land attack upon the rear of Mobile formed a part of the plan of operations against the city and bay; and that it is expected our forces will be able to capture not only the city but also the troops defending it. The latest mail from New Orleans is only to the 7th, and the result of such a land movement could not at that time be known. The news from rebel sources is not any later, the latest Mobile despatch in the Richmond journals which have come to hand being dated the 7th. We must therefore wait a a few days to know what the army has done.

It will be remembered that some weeks ago a force was sent to Pensacola, from which point it marched inland, for the purpose, as was said, of meeting and succoring if neces-sary one of General Sherman's cavalry expeditions. Now we have reason to believe that the army at Pensacola was strongly and suddenly reinforced in the first days of August, and was prepared for a movement against the rear of Mobile, to co-operate with another force, which set out from New Orleans by way of Lake Pontchartrain not many hours before Farragut began his attack. This latter body would of course approach Mobile from the west.

The city which is thus threatened lies about midway between Pensacola and Mississippi City, the two points of departure for the co-operative land troops. These two points are each less than fifty miles by sea from the entrance of Mobile Bay, while the overland march to the rear of the city cannot be less than one hundred miles, through a difficult country. We need not expect to hear of land operations, therefore, for some days to come. If, as is not unlikely, General Canby should strike the railroad and river some distance north of Mobile, in order to destroy the one and command the other, and thus cut off the city from relief, then we may not hear of decisive operations for a week, or even a fort-

The rebel force defending Mobile cannot be great; the whole country has been swept clean of soldiers to reinforce Hood; and it is a noticeable fact that General Grant did not venture to order operations against Mobile until the rebels had fully committed themselves to the defence of Atlanta. It is impossible now for Hood to send away a part of his army to defend Mobile; and, unless some unforcseen obstacle interferes, the city is likely to be ours within a few days.—N. Y. Evening Post.

General Butler's Canal.

A letter from the Army of the Potomac says: For some time past Major General Butler has been conning over a brilliant scheme wherewith to annoy the enemy, and advance the Union interest in this region materially. His plan contemplated nothing less than the construction of a canal at what has hitherto been known as Dutch Gap—hereafter to be known as Butler's Gap—in the direct face of the enemy, which, when done, should, among other results, by reason of its situation, compel the rebels to extend their line of defence a distance of four miles—that is to say, the distance saved to us by the digging of the canal, which is to be one hundred and forty yards in length, is seven miles of water course in the James river.

Seme four days since the proper details of men and officers were made for this important and hazardous work, and these men were eacouraged to its performance by extra induce-ments, and placed under the general command of Major Ludlow, of the departmental staff. The work proceeded handsomely for three days, during the last of which the enemy discovered our operations, and made instant preparation to open fire, which the result will show to have been an advantageous one for them, though Ludlow nobly and successfully held his position, still holds it, and will continue to hold it until his appointed work is accomplished.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning two Rebel rams, believed to be the Virginia and the Richmond, though some think one of them was the Lady Davis, appeared at Dutch Gap, in the James river. The James at this point forms a promontory, which is very narrow at its apex. nearly all being cared for at City Point.

Lieut. Colonel Warren, 36th Wisconsin, lost a long tongue, and, verging to the northward and westward makes another turn, which forms a point similar to the first, east by north. Hence the river bends yet again, and forms a third angle running northwest. Under cover of this angle completely and literally sheltered from our gunboats, lay the two Rebel rams. Their position was such as, taken in connection with the Howlett House battery of the enemy, to subject our forces to a severe enfilading fire, which was borne throughout the day with manly fortitude by our men.

The successful construction of the canal, of which there can be no doubt, will, it is alleged, enable our gunboats to wholly overcome the formidable obstructions in the James river, and possibly ultimately be the means of their engaging Fort Darling and other rebel strong!y fortified places adjacent to Richmond, and perhaps, before the end comes, operate largely in the reduction of the rebel capital itself. These are glowing anticipations; but nevertheless they are capable of realization by patient and indulgent waiting for. Any one of these results, added to the necessity imposed upon the enemy of lengthening his line of defense a distance of four miles, requiring several thousands of men to man this prolongation of their lines, will certainly be regarded as adequate compensation for the time, labor and men bestowed upon the accomplishment of the undertaking.

EDWARD A. POLLARD .- This individual, formerly one of the editors of the Richmond Examiner, and who was some months since taken prisoner on the blockade runner Greyhound, brought to this port and subsequently committed to Fort Warren, was discharged from the fort last Friday. It is said that he has been exchanged for some Federal prisoner in Richmond, and that he is on his parole to go to the city of Brooklyn, N. Y., where he is to report regularly to the provost marshal. Previous to leaving the fort, Pollard took the oath, swearing not to make any revelations, either verbal or written, and to keep his parole strictly and truly, &c. Pollard reached this city last Friday afternoon, and left in theearly train Saturday morning.—Boston Journal.

VARIETIES.—WASHINGTON, Aug. 17, 1861.
In yesterday's Star we noticed the continued ravings of a demented back street Model Artiste Music Hall proprietor. This unmitigated wretch seeing his crib most justly falling to decay, wretch seeing his crib most justly falling to decay, tries to puff up at our expense. He wants us to drive a show wagon. That we agree to, and will hire him for the "ass in the harness," pull him around town to show honest people the ass's countenance—the low forehead, cunning eye, long ears, black hair, pallid face and spavined limbs. We know this fellow as he says is unable to cope with us, because he had better learn to write his own name first. Now still be candid. Oh, why did you not take the oath of allegiance? Oh, Model artiste man, the back streets were ashamed of you. Reform. It may not be too late. Your crib will be Reform. It may not be too late. Your crib will be closed up. Leave rum alone. FROM CITY POINT.

Arrival of Wounded-Our Forces Supposed to be Advancing-Butler's Canal at Dutch Gap-Indications of Active Operations on Land and Water.

The mail steamer John Brooks, Capt. Bender, arrived from City Point at about 5 o'clock this morning, with the mails from the army and passengers, among them over twenty rebel prisoners, including one or two commissioned officers and several refugees.

The hospital steamer State of Maine, Capt John Borden, which left City Point yesterday afternoon, arrived here about noon with three hundred wounded on board, most of whom belong to the 1st brigade, 2d division of Han-cock's corps, wounded in the fight on Sunday morning at Deep Bottom. Among them are nineteen officers, including Col. G. W. Macy, 20th Massachusetts, and Lieut. Col. C. E. Warner, 36th Wisconsin.

Most of these were wounded early in the action, and were immediately brought off. Our forces, at last accounts, held the position taken, and were to have made an assault on the enemy's strong works in front of them on Monday, and from the firing heard yesterday it was believed that we were advancing. The rebels are persistently attempting, by an enfilading fire from Howlett's Landing and their gun-boats, to stop the laborers engaged in cutting the canal across Dutch Gap, whereby a distance of over seven miles will be saved in going up the James river, and the passage of a battery on the end of the peninsula will be avoided, but the work still goes bravely on, and it is expected that the water will be let into it sometime this week.

The workmen have to cut their way through a bank over fifty feet high and the canal we understand is about 18 feet deep, which will float the largest vessels now on James river. It is contemplated that instead of sending the iron-clads to Norfolk or other points hereafter when they are disabled, to repair them up the river and werkmen are being engaged to go up and keep themselves ready for work.

THE PIRATE SEMMES AND THE WRIGHT CAP MACHINE.

There has been recently published in England an account of "The Cruise of the Alabama and Sumter, from the Private Journals and other Papers of Commander R. Semmes, C. S. N." This publication has a biographical sketch of the pirate Semmes, giving the particulars of his desertion of his trust as a commander in the U.S. Navy and member of the Light House Board. After being formally engaged in the service of the enemy, (and not till then,) he resigned his commission in the U.S.

"He was then deputed by Jefferson Davis to 'return to the Northern States and make large purchases and contracts for machinery and munitions, or for the manufacture of arms and munitions of war; and to obtain cannon ind musket powder, the latter of the coarsest grain, and to engage with a certain proprietor of powder mills for the embarkment of a powder mill at some point in the limits of our ter-He was also informed that at the Arsenal at Washington he would find an artificer named Wright, who had brought the cap machine to a high degree of efficiency, and who might be induced to furnish a machine.' We do not know what success Semmes had in other quarters in pursuance of his mission. but he certainly did not get much aid from our fellow-townsman, the ingenious inventor of the cap machine. This machine, it is well known, turns off work with great rapidity and perfection, and it is not strange that the Confederate leaders should have been anxious to secure it and the serivces of its inventor for

There is quite an interesting little chapter connected with their efforts to secure the cap machine, and it serves to show how early and how systematically they commenced their plans to be tray their country. Semmes, who was then residing in the First Ward, actually did call on Mr. Wright on the 25th of February, 1861, and urged Mr. W. to enter into an arrangement with him to furnish a cap machine. Mr. Wright positively declined and Semmes reluctantly abandoned the attempt. It would seem that the rebel leaders at Richmond getting solicitous in regard to the cap machine and not hearing from their agent Semmes, in regard to the matter, they concluded to address Mr. Wright directly, and on the 2d of May, 1861, he received the following: Mr. G. Wright :- If you will come here and make us a cap machine, the state will give you good pay and a premium, which will satisfy you. If you will say exactly what will induce you to come, I will telegraph you back under a feigned name of Roswell Charter, and my name you may call John R. Richardson.

Yours respectfully,

C. DIMMOCK, Col. of Ordnance. Richmond, Va., April 27, 1864. This letter Mr. Wright never answered, but he promptly laid it before Colonel Ramsay. then commandant at the Arsenal, by whom it was shown to the War Department. Thus ended the rebel attempt to secure the famous cap machine Mr. Wright, who is master machinist at the Washington Arsenal, has been in Government service for twenty-four years.

His course in the matters referred to affords a

Jackson, of the firm of Monroe & Jackson, who keep a steamed oyster saloon on G street, between 6th and 7th. was arrested to-day on charge of robbing his partner of a sum of money in gold and Treasury notes. Jackson was arrested about a month ago on charge of robbing a soldier of money and a woman of some jewelry, when Detectives Clarvoe and McDevitt arrested him and found the money secreted in a cigar box in his place of business. At that time Jackson was held to bail for court, his partner, Mr.

Monroe, becoming his surety.

A few nights ago (the night being exceedingly warm) Mr. Monroe lay down within the door of his saloon to sleep, having at the same time an amount of money in his pocket. Jackson the next morning remarked to Monroe, "How easily you could have been robbed last night,' and upon Monroe's feeling for his money it was gone. The robbery was reported, and the matter having been placed in the hands of detectives McDevitt and Clarvoe, they set to work with their usual energy, and arrested Jackson this morning; and he was committed to jan for court by Justice Miller.

E. P. Phelps, presiding elder of the district, and Rev. T. T. Wysong, who is in charge of the circuit. This eamp is on the same ground as that held last year, which passed off so quietly and pleasantly, and many of those who participated in it then will no doubt be on hand this year. A company has been formed at the McKendree Chapel, and will leave in the 6.30 train on Friday, and there is no doubt but large numbers will follow them. The trains stopping at the Switch are the 6.30 train in the morning and the 4 45 in the afternoon. Arrangements will made for carrying persons from the Switch to ROBBERY.-Last night officers McElfresh and McColgan arrested Edward Thompson and Alonzo Castor for the robbing of a soldier named Benjamin Terry. The robbery was perpetrated near the Government garden, on x street, south of the avenue. Terry was seen lying by the garden fence, greaning as if drunk or hurt. Thompson and Castor were sitting by him counting money from a pocket book. Upon searching the prisoners over $630 were found on Thompson. Terry testified that he had over $640 in greenbacks. Terry identifled his pocket book, and the money found was in greenbacks, similar to that lost. Thompson and Castor claim to be soldiers from Lincoln Hospital. The prisoners say they took the money to keep it until Terry was sober. Terry belongs to the 19th Veteran Reserve Corps, and had been with the prisoners in hospital before the raid of Early to Washington, and was acquainted with them. They were committed for court by Justice Giberson.
